Tatyana Kanzaveli
Founder/CEO, Open Health Network; App Developer (e.g. American Heart Association My Cardiac Coach)

Tatyana Kanzaveli began as a programmer and has since held roles as a senior executive within large multinational companies and startups. Through her personal journey as a cancer survivor, she became motivated to help patients and is now the founder and CEO of Open Health Network, a healthcare startup in Big Data, Blockchain and Artificial Intelligence. Tatyana and her team developed an app called “My Cardiac Coach” for the American Heart Association. “My Cardiac Coach” allows patients to track health data, learn, manage medications and find local cardiac rehab centers. Tatyana is a mentor at 500Startups and the Richard Branson Entrepreneurs Centre and serves on boards for private companies. She often speaks at conferences on innovation, entrepreneurship and digital health, and is also a licensee and organizer of the TEDxBayArea conference. Tatyana Kanzaveli was a USSR chess champion, and teammate of Gary Kasparov.
